 On Thu, May 13, 2010 at 11:50 PM,

Thanks for your kind reply. How are you today? hope you are doing well.

In the email you sent to me, you mentioned that you reside in Bangalore but the car is with here in London. But i explain to you how this will work out. Shipment of such cars from London to India will take only 2 weeks and 3 days to arrive, before that the change of ownership document have to be available, to enable the shipment because shipping the car a new bought property will cost a lot in the customs but if you ship it as your own property will be treated well and i guarantee you safe arrival. Then as soon as the car reaches India, i will direct you to a friend of mine who works with the British high commission in New Delhi to help clear the car at the port with the clearance fee of 80,670 INR. You can drive the car home so total is 2.8 lakh Rs.

waiting for your reply.

 Hi Mr

Thank you for replying. Can you send me a picture of the car, wanted to see how it looks and what colour is it? Hope the engine is in good condition. How many kms had it run should the payment be done --- cash or transfer it online? How much advance should I pay, to whom and how? Can the full payment be made after the car is delivered and please details of your friend in the British high commission so that i get in touch with him. Please make this fast as I am also getting some good offers from the small cars in Bangalore

Regards

 Dear

Attached to the email are the pictures of the car as you have requested. The car is presently in a very good condition, you can check the date which the pictures were taken, it has only run 2200 km and it's a Toyota Corolla 2008 Model. You will have to pay me 50% of the payment which is 1 lac Rs then to complete the remaining as soon as the car gets to you. The payment will be made by bank deposit in India. My friend who works with the British high commission left for Malaysia yesterday for an important conference meeting, you can also contact him with this information. Here are the contact details:
 Name: Mr Wilson Hooper
 Phone: +60146208314

Regards to you and your family.
